

There's Madison Avenue,
Grand and Elite,
Where fashionable people roam the street

And Hollywood Boulevard,
Iconic and famed
Home to people critically acclaimed

Perhaps the Champs Élysées is more for you,
With its bright lights and old statues
It's no denying that the elegant array
Is tempting enough to make you stay

There's Abbey Road and Lombard Street,
Roads crooked and roads steep
Fifth avenue and The Royal Mile
So full of history and style

But you'll find me north of the CBD,
For there's no other place I'd rather be,
Then where trees line the street with green and gold,
Attracting locals year round, young and old

Where innovation and education collide
And nature and culture and history abide
Where healthcare is world class and transport is best
A place that truly never rests

Is not in New York or in Old London Town
But where the tram runs up and down
In the city that has much to see and do
Yet is visited by so very few

In Adelaide is where you'll find it,
Not along the Las Vegas strip,

But just north of the famous balls,
You'll find north terrace, a place for all.
